I recently heard a person say the healing way to confront grief is through gratitude. Tammy saw that on display this week when she attended the funeral for an infant relative. Tammy's great niece and her husband welcomed a beautiful baby girl into their family. A week later, the baby developed respiratory distress from unknown causes and passed after a few hours in a hospital.

The father spoke at the funeral and in the midst of their grief, shared their gratitude for being allowed to have one week with their baby girl. Sad and grieving, but not bitter.

We all experience hurt and sadness. Finding the opportunity for gratitude in sadness is healing for our souls. ~Jeff Wolfgong

Taste and see that the LORD is good;
blessed is the one who takes refuge in him.
